FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

TECHNOLOGY CONSERVATION GROUP, INC. EXPANDS WORKFORCE

Portland, OR – TECHNOLOGY CONSERVATION GROUP, INC. has added Quality, Environmental Health & Safety (QEHS) staff to its Oregon facility.

Jacquelyn Lomsdal joined the company as EH&S Manager December 2010. Jacque received her BS in Environmental Science from Oregon State University majoring in Environmental Health and Safety and minoring in Environmental Engineering. While attending school Jacque worked as an Engineering Aide at Clackamas County surveyor's Office where she helped to develop their electronic filing system for plat files. She also worked at the City of Corvallis Public Works Department as a Safety Intern where she rewrote their safety manual, created emergency evacuation plans for city-owned buildings, and developed their hazard assessment database.

TECHNOLOGY CONSERVATION GROUP, INC. continues to expand and implement new programs worldwide. The addition of Mrs. Lomsdal will support the company's implementation of various environmental programs.

About TECHNOLOGY CONSERVATION GROUP

Founded in 1996 TECHNOLOGY CONSERVATION GROUP specializes in asset disposition and recycling of waste stream commodities generated through the manufacturing of electronics and electronic components. TECHNOLOGY CONSERVATION GROUP recycles, reuses and/or remarkets virtually 100% of its intake. TECHNOLOGY CONSERVATION GROUP holds a multi-site certification to ISO 14001:2004 standards, adheres to all levels of environmental regulations, and respects design security without sacrificing returns. TECHNOLOGY CONSERVATION GROUP serves an international customer base through its strategically located facilities throughout North America, Mexico, United Kingdom, Israel and India.
